Phoning Out of Town? Dial 'O'

Greater Victoria telephone users will dial "O" instead of "110" for long distance. New, faster, automatic direct dialing by operators like Kay Goodall, 945 Wollaston, bypasses "relay operators" on calls to distant points. It is first step toward "home-to-home" distance dialing, telephone companies say.—(Colonist photo)

Ladd Speaks on Newfoundland

No Longer Just a Strike —Civil Liberties at Stake

Top official of the International Woodworkers of America in Newfoundland said organized labor plans to pour $1,000,000 a month into the IWA's fight against de-certification in Newfoundland.

H. Landon Ladd told The Daily Colonist last night the Canadian Labor Congress plans to ask local unions throughout the nation to assess their members $1 each per month. The CLC has some 1,000,000 members.

The money will be poured into the death struggle which is no longer a strike to "get decent working conditions for Newfoundland loggers," he said, but has become a "national issue of civil liberties."

Mr. Ladd said: "The right of a man to join the union of his choice—that's something every Canadian understands. It's a civil right hard-won by trade unionists in the past. And a right taken from one Canadian is a right taken from all Canadians."

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been talking eloquently about a bill of rights for Canadians.

"We say the best place for the prime minister to begin is in Newfoundland by throwing out the bill which de-certifies the international unions," Mr. Ladd said.

He said precedent for such action exists in the 145 provincial statutes disallowed by the federal government since Confederation.

Mr. Ladd is president of the IWA eastern district which extends from Saskatchewan to the Atlantic. He is on a Canada-wide fund-raising campaign for the striking IWA men and since arriving in B.C. Friday has addressed meetings in Vancouver, New Westminster and Cowichan Lake.

He will speak to a meeting in Port Alberni this morning, Nanaimo this afternoon, and a Victoria meeting which is expected to draw more than 2,000 to the Club Sirocco, 1037 View, at 8 p.m. today.

The IWA spokesman said the IWA has challenged Premier Smallwood to test the legality of the de-certification legislation in the courts, adding that if this course was legally open to the union, "we'd be in court tomorrow."

He said Premier Smallwood's suit against the federal government is part of an elaborate "red herring" designed to keep these "illegal" statutes long enough on the books to starve out IWA loggers.

"But Smallwood doesn't know the IWA," said Mr. Ladd.

Aid for Poets

Limited Edition For Cent

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) —Poems will cost a penny apiece here Monday. If you buy one, you can be assured of having a limited edition.

Three Yale students are promoting the poetry sale this way:

Fellow students all over the U.S.—unpublished poets all—have been sending their efforts to William Byler, Alan Shavzin and Lewis Lipsitz. The Yale trio has been duplicating each poem 200 times.

Come next week, the 200 copies of each poem will be exhibited, face down, in a local book store. Purchasers may plunk down a penny and take home a poem. They may not read before buying.

There's no profit motive, say the Yale students. They just want to help fellow poets become published.

Boys Lost in Bush Practice Cub Craft

ERRINGTON—The parents of two 11-year-old twin brothers and a pal are wondering what might have happened if their sons had not had Cub training and know-how when they became lost in the bush last night.

Friday morning the boys, Donald and Douglas Johnson, and Brian Dyck went on a picnic to Little Mountain lookout.

On their way home darkness overtook them and they lost their bearings so they decided to build a shelter as they had been taught to do in their Cub training and wait for daylight before trying to make their way out of the bush.

The parents became alarmed and called RCMP.

However, soon after daybreak yesterday morning the boys returned to their parents.

BB Guns Menace

CHEMAINUS — Coun. J. S. Dyke brought an angry complaint to North Cowichan council against vandalism of youths in Crofton with BB guns. Light bulbs on the streets, passing cars, and people sitting reading by their front windows, had all been recent victims of the dangerous older teenagers who were responsible, he said.

Two Men Sentenced Again To Prison They Just Left

Two Vancouver men, recently released from B.C. Penitentiary, were returned for a total of six years in sentences after two appearances in Vancouver Island courts.

At Nanaimo, Wilfred Ernest Coull and Daniel Michael McKay were sentenced to five years by Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts on three charges of breaking and entering.

A few hours later they were given additional one-year terms to run consecutively when they appeared before Magistrate D. G. Ashby in Sidney police court on a charge of stealing a $6,500 cabin cruiser.
